How Inspiren works inside a Stoney River Community

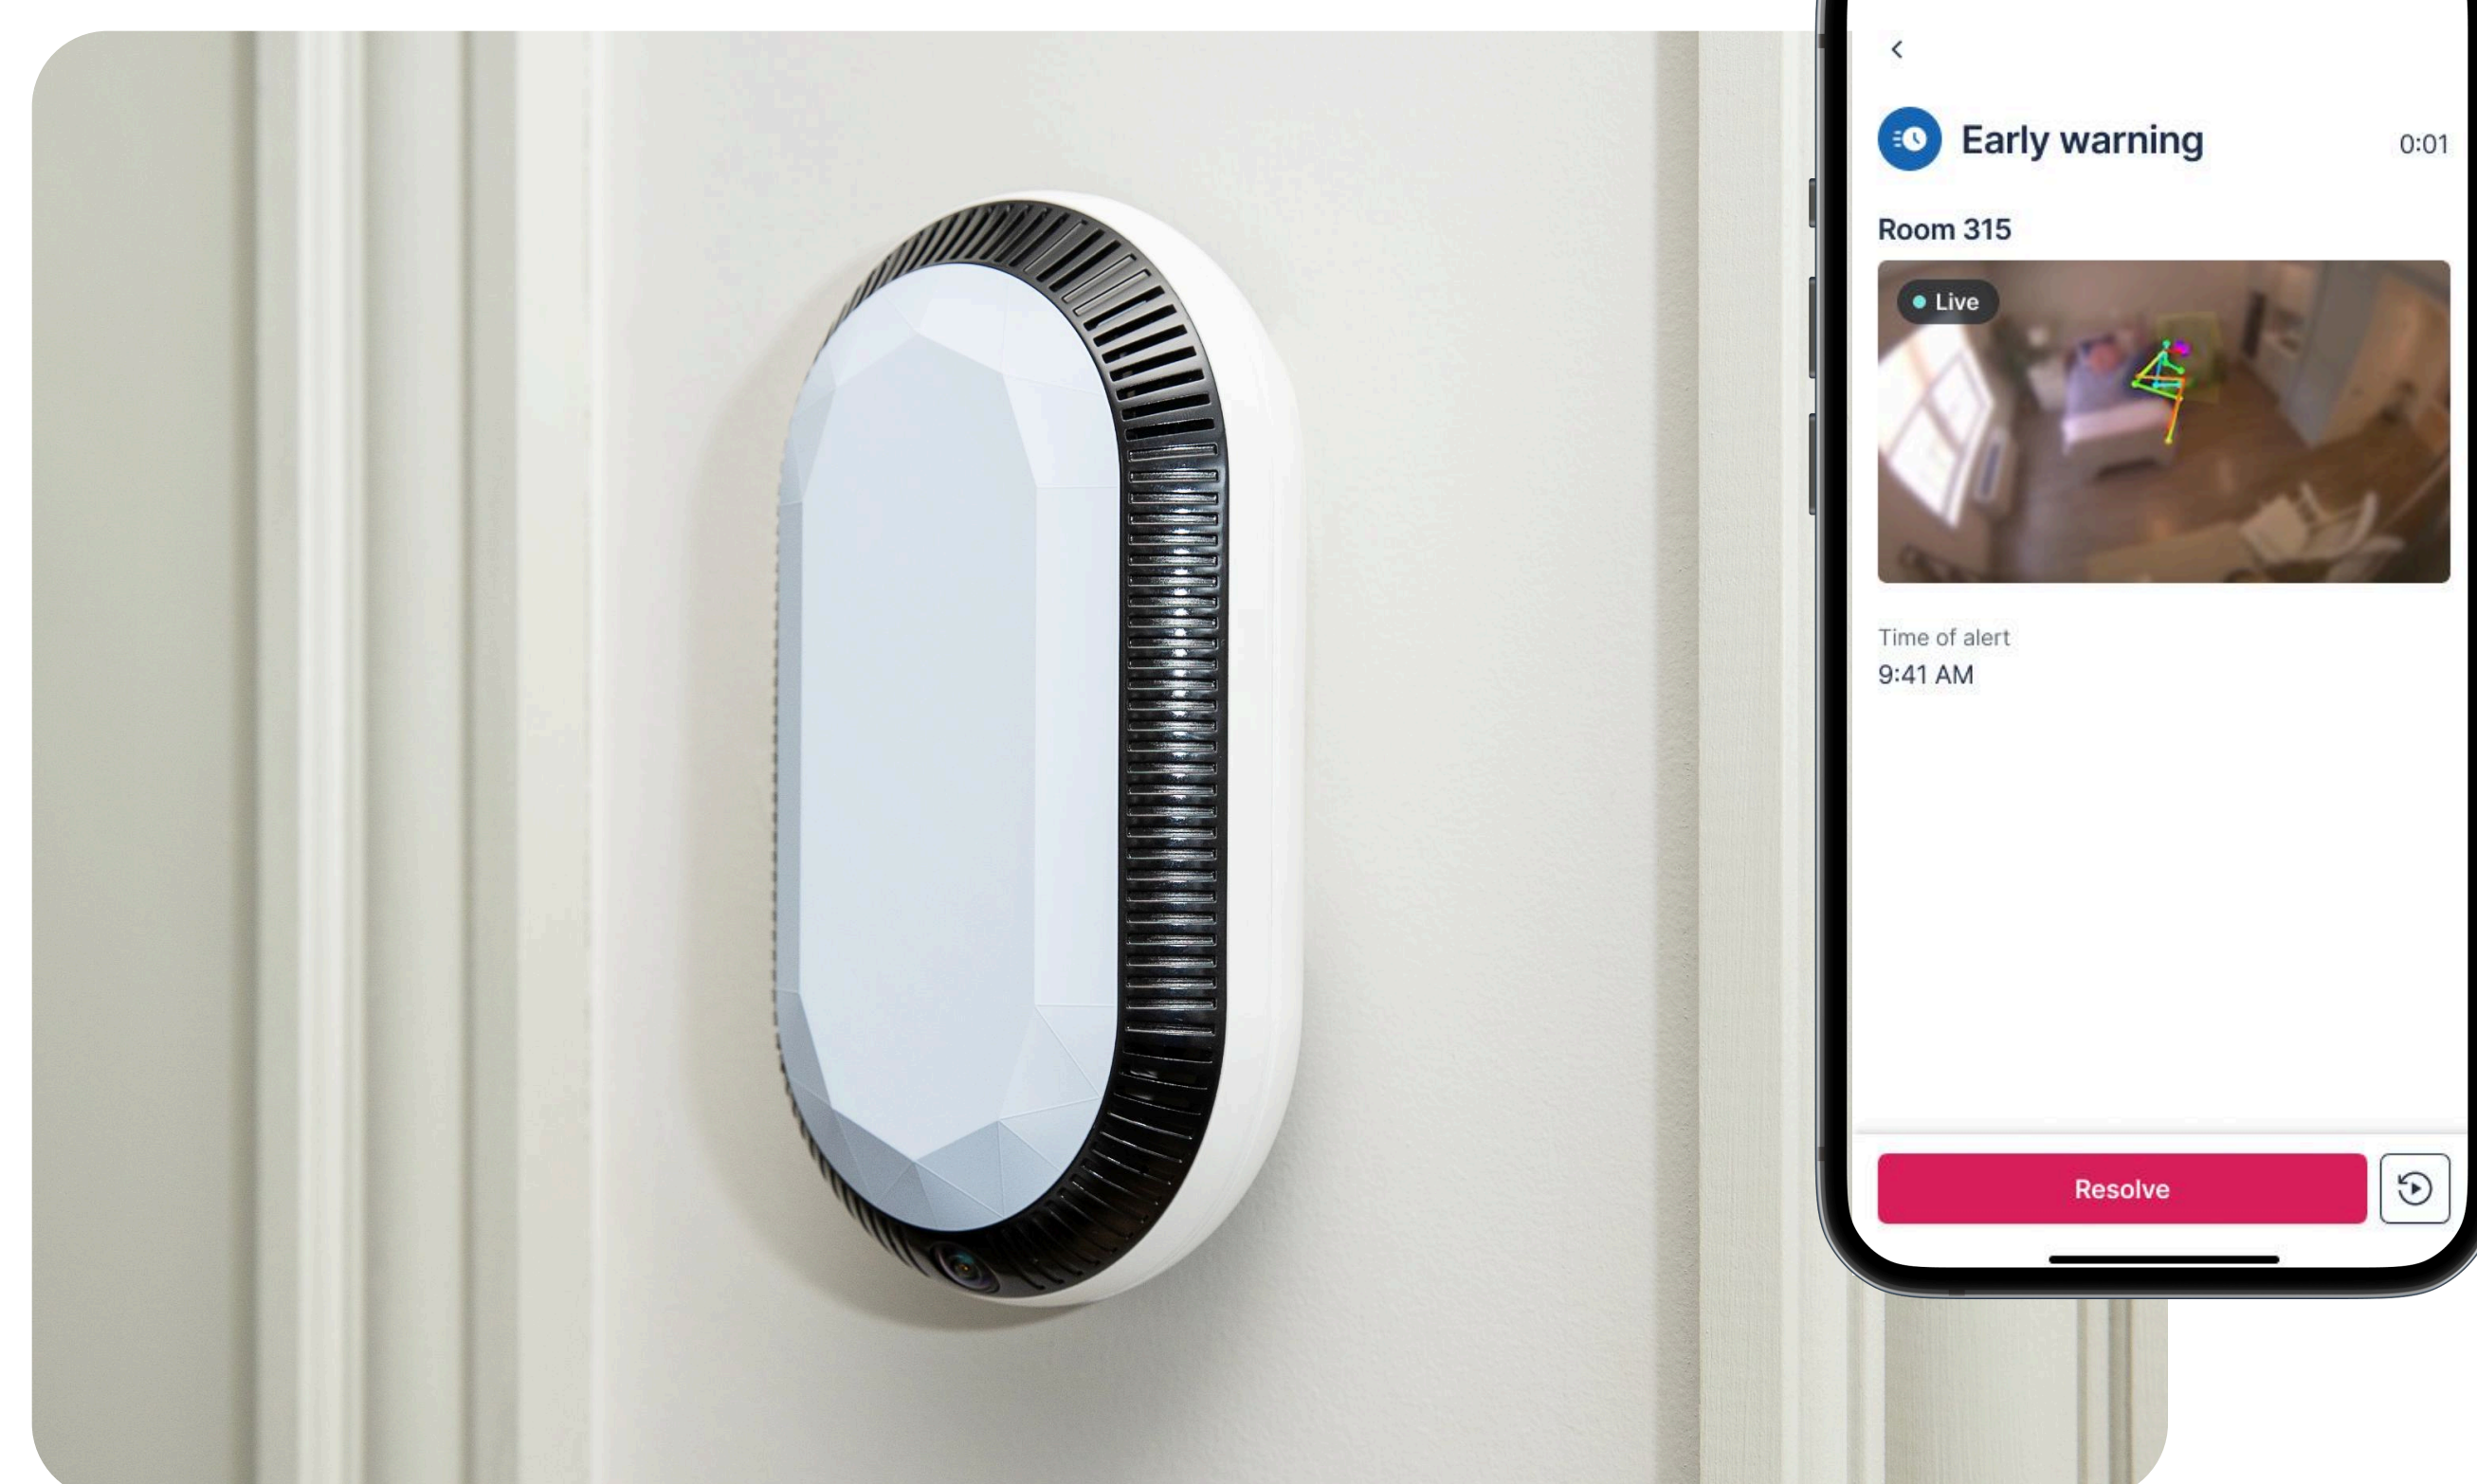

Inspiren helps staff identify risk sooner and respond faster during high-risk moments, like falls.

AUGi

AUGi is a wall-mounted sensor for resident rooms and common spaces

- Detects movement patterns and high-risk moments like bed exits, chair exits, or falls
- Sends alerts to staff so they can respond quickly

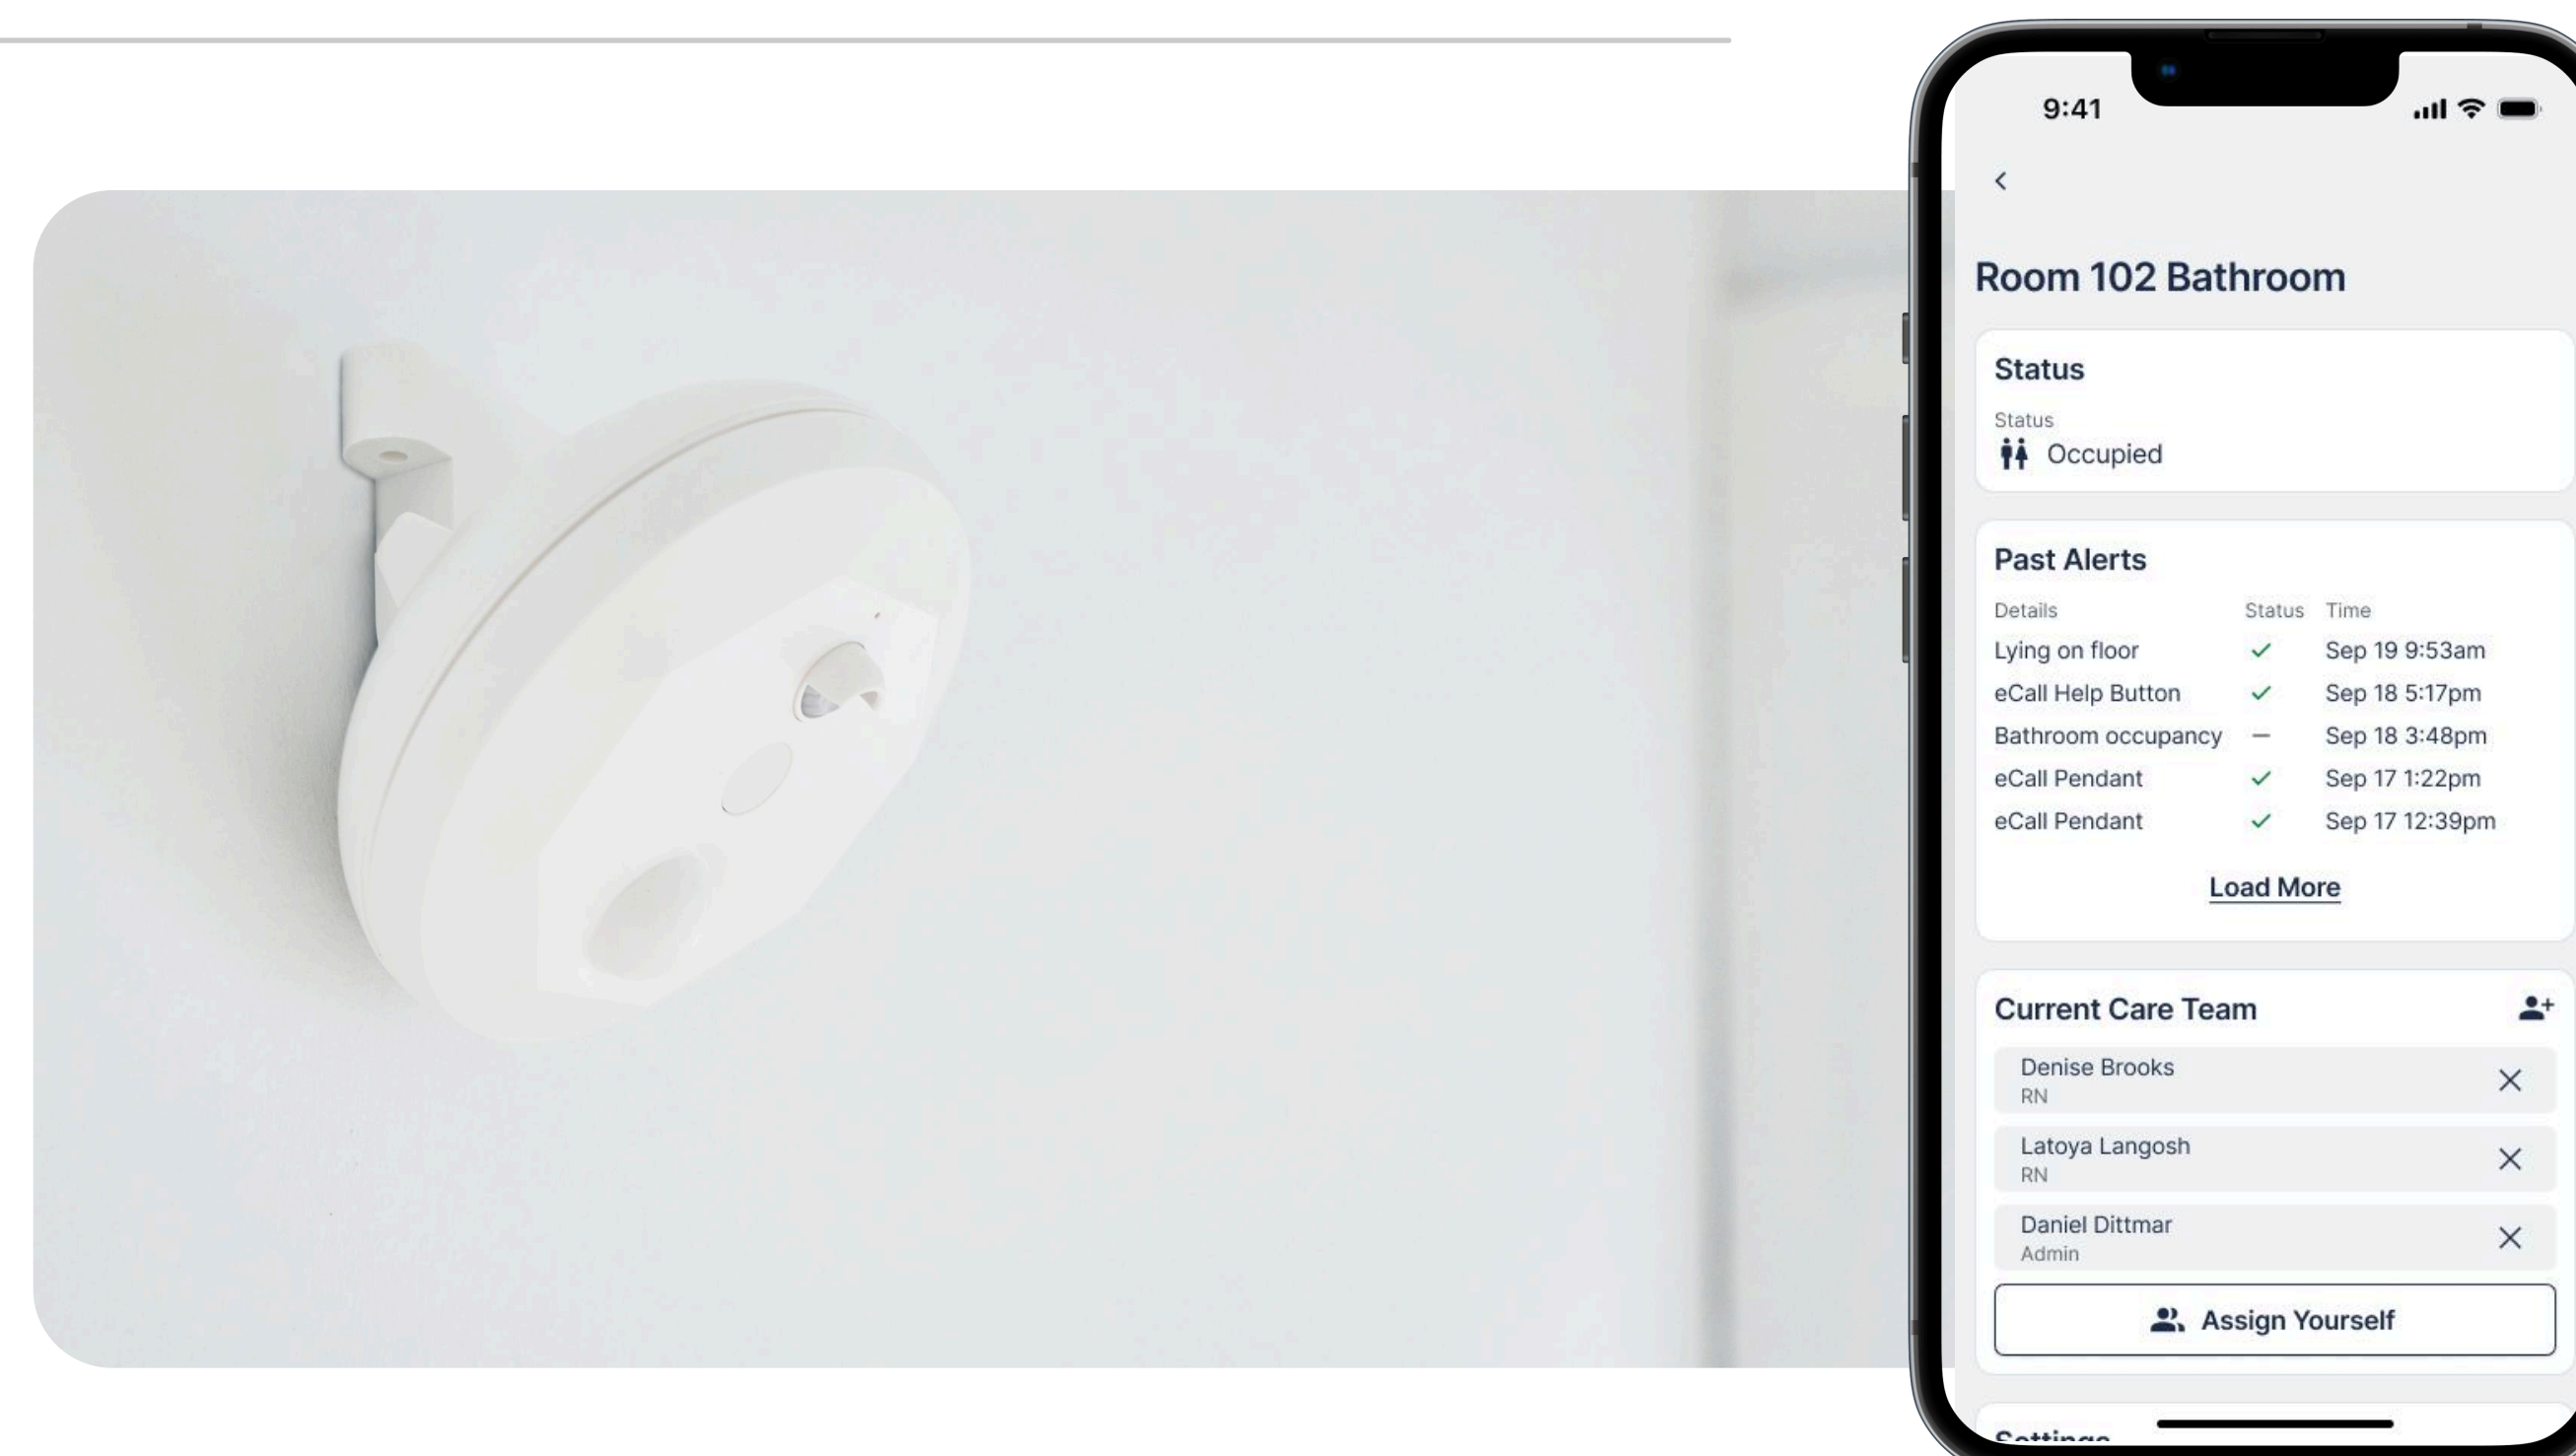

Gives staff clear, privacy-protected context before they arrive to help. Images are blurred and displayed as abstract stick figures.

Sense

Bathroom safety without cameras

- Alerts staff to falls and prolonged bathroom occupancy
- Radar-based sensing (no camera)

Staff Beacon

Makes all care visible

A wearable for staff that confirms presence and captures care time automatically.

- Recognizes when staff arrive to help
- Automatically records time spent providing care
- Helps ensure care needs are met and followed through

Preserved autonomy for residents, peace of mind for families

For residents

- Faster help during high-risk moments, like out of bed, out of chair, prolonged bathroom stay, or a fall
- Fewer unwitnessed falls
- Care that adapts to individual routines and needs
- Greater independence and autonomy throughout the community

For families

- Confidence that staff are alerted quickly to changes, like out of bed movement or prolonged bathroom stay
- Peace of mind knowing safety is monitored around the clock
- Transparency that supports trust in the care being delivered

Inspiren is designed specifically for senior living environments with resident privacy at the foundation

- No audio recording
- No facial recognition
- No live video feed
- Access limited to authorized staff

Inspiren does not record sound, provide live video feeds, or track residents. Access is limited to authorized staff, data is used strictly for care and safety, and it is not stored beyond the time-frame set by community leadership.

Senior Living, redefined

Inspiren helps care teams see risk sooner, respond faster, and personalize care over time. The result is a safer community where residents are supported and families feel confident in their decision.
